

REQUIEM FOR A DREAM

To ravage, to slaughter, to usurp under false titles, they call empire, and where they make a desert, they call it peace. –Tacitus

It is time for thee to work O Lord, for they have made void thy law. –Psalm 121:126

For those of us who've opted out of the political system it's easy to imagine the events of these past 4 years—leading up to the odd debacle of January 6—don't particularly affect us. Because we're not guilty of participating in the ritual, we're not culpable for the damage done by those who did. (That may be systemic damage, societal, maybe spiritual). But that would be an error.

We share this land with our countrymen, and those who desire true peace, justice, and righteousness (they may call it "conservatism") are not our enemies. Those misguided souls who still believed in the "system" and in the "perfection" of the Constitution, who rose up en masse four years ago to enthrone a man who told them he would "give back the power to the people" to defeat the forces of Leftism, and turn back the flood of invaders to our ancestral land cannot be faulted for their good intentions. Yet, they will suffer the dire consequences of this monumental failure, as will we. As an avowed anti-statist and non-voter, I might be inclined to gloat, or to be angry at them for their foolishness, their naiveté, or even their destructive ignorance. But there's no time for that, nor use in it. Besides, I'm not holier than thou, and I, along with most of what might be considered Narrow-Way Christianity, bear part of the blame. Which I will get to shortly.

But first we'll take a deep cave dive into our present locus.

Whatever program was being run on us for the past 5 years since Trump first appeared on the scene is now into its last lines of code. We're nearing the final moments of the final act of whatever all this was or is. In a few days, the last holders-on to the Trump Plan—the Swamp-drainers and the Q-anons—will be left alone in silence and in abject bewilderment. Many will valiantly attempt to make yet more excuses for their failed hero ("he hasn't failed! He's still setting up the chess board for the final sweep in April!)...But, eventually, one by one, they will fall away in their disillusionment. I do pity my countrymen and make no boasts of "I told you so!" I wish they would not have had to learn this hard lesson in this hard way. It will be morally humiliating for them, and some will succumb to it in deep depression—some in rage. This will benefit none of us.

And I am hopeful that none will fall for any more set-ups for self-incrimination or patriot-traps. I pray none, in their righteous indignation, decide to take justice into their own hands, for this would be a grave mistake about now. It is as if Yahweh is telling us, as He did through His prophet Jeremiah, to not go down into Egypt (for protection) but to "stay in the land" ...for the king of Babylon had been sent to judge the people, and the people, seeking to avoid the chastisement of God, thought to find remedy by escape and allegiance to the 'enemy of their enemy'... to take matters into their own hands, in other words. A solemn reading of Jeremiah chapters 42-44 would be instructive here. We see Jeremiah inquired of the Lord, and thus He answered them that if they tried to escape, they would all perish. But if they remained in the land and submitted, they would live. But they would not... And they walked directly into the enemy they thought to avoid, taking Jeremiah with them. At this point in our American saga, a direct assault on the king of Babylon would be suicidal—and counterproductive for the survivors.

And yet, I see this as a very likely scenario for our people who don't understand why we are here, and that the only way out of it now is through it.

I've seen more than a few theories or explanations for what has transpired in the last few weeks. For sure, confusion reigns right now. But I found this one very intriguing. It connects the odd dots, and makes some sense out of the incomprehensible. Read and consider how it tends to explain the very peculiar situation of Trump shaking up the Pentagon leadership immediately after the fake election by installing an intriguing group of the Usual Suspects... who had some interesting credentials. Of course, the Q-anons were led to believe this was preparatory for the "Storm" and the tribunals to immediately follow. But, of course, this did not happen.

Rather, it alludes to an interesting hypothesis—and a treacherous one—concluding that the January 6 event was a honey-pot sting operation against the Patriots. Further, giving evidence that the President was not only complicit, but was an actual player. In fact, the Q psyop was used massively in the last month to rouse the MAGA crowd into doing exactly what they did. This is not just a corollary. And now that Q has "gone dark" (as word has it) for 14-days of silence in anticipation of the Event (part of the Plan—you must trust!), he's left all his disciples hanging...waiting...twisting...But, he will never again break radio silence. While they were all waiting for their hero to come back on stage for the promised encore, the beloved Elvis slipped out the back door...and the doorman with him, taking all the ladies' mink coats.

For some strange reason all of this reminds me of a movie I once saw about a great bank heist. Can't remember the name or the specific details, but something went amiss and there was a standoff, and the robbers took the whole bank hostage...this was the bulk of the movie plot. In the end, after the negotiations were made and agreed upon, the 'bad guys' began releasing the hostages. Once the last one walked out, the cops stormed the building—and found no one there. The vaults had been emptied, but the robbers were gone. As I recall, the twist was that there never were any bank robbers, but it was an inside job. The guilty just casually walked out along with the hostages and got away with the whole thing.

It is as if this entire inaugural rotation—from the last one to the next to eerily come on the formerly mobbed steps of the Capitol, now thronged with US military forces in full battle regalia (so as to protect his royal "legitimacy")—was a collective fever dream. That we've been in a fugue state during this whole quatrains of years, which is why we cannot make sense out of it. In fact, it exactly feels like the 9/11 events, as if reality itself is haunted.

I plainly admit I am baffled by what I've seen. If Yahweh has not indeed given the whole world over to a "strong delusion", then I think we must be in some far worse trouble than we even imagine. It could even be proposed (by some imaginative type) that what we all remember happening nearly 20 years ago on September 11th wasn't what actually occurred, but an artifact of a traumatic nightmare. And in fact, some world-wide catastrophe transpired on that day and every living soul perished—maybe by fire this time. And since that day, all of us have been dead, but unaware of it, working out our sins in a sort of purgatory on the former earth...

Rather, I believe we are being prepared to receive something new from Yahweh. And why shouldn't He do something new? It's been rather quiet for the last two millennia and we approach the anniversary of His resurrection. The Kingdom has not advanced like we'd expected; the West is dying, and we have now squandered the last vast and beautiful frontier He'd graciously reserved for His people... America is undergoing autolysis; we've polluted our wells, salted our fields, and we watch with wizened eyes what once was a peaceful oasis and a dream for the kingdom of Heaven to literally take root... revert to a dry wasteland with wickedness on every side. Justice is openly mocked; every ordinance of God has been turned upside down. The godless have now mounted the walls and occupy the gates. And we are trapped behind the lines.

Now Yahweh must work. This is where we begin to learn to trust wholly upon Him. Because there is nobody left to trust. This is the New Thing.

But what can we do? We can start with confessing our own sins and the sins of our fathers. Let's begin with WHY exactly we have been somewhat culpable for the cognizant dissonance of our countrymen in their zeal to follow after another king. If you examine the underlying causes of their statism, first and foremost it is the same as Israel of old when they had desired a king (and thus a State)... "It is because they have rejected Me, that I should not rule over them" (1 Samuel 8:7). Our national rejection of God and His law set us on our inevitable path of destruction. From that, we've gone from bad to worse as the natural consequences of these choices began to manifest—and could no longer be ignored.

Seeing, therefore, the depraved state of our American Way, they believed that the "system", as set forth by the sacred scripture of Constitution, was holy in its pure state, and thus—like Christianity itself in the 1500's—was only in need of reformation. This led them to the false conclusion that redemption could be found from within. If only a "king" would arise to lead us all back to the pure way of interpretation and re-instill the articles as the "founding fathers" intended...

Knowing all of this, of course, the Controllers high up in the panopticon provided one. Plucked straight out of a reality TV show (because they love to shove it in our faces), they chose the penultimate hero and villain—in one flesh. This one, like the Christ Himself, was "appointed for the fall and rise of many... and for a sign to be opposed". And the false messiah was appointed to fulfill the role that was given him, and to consummate the final abomination of desolation—the betrayal of half a nation by their own savior.

The intended result of all of this is now becoming evident. The 'patriots', the MAGAnites, those of conservative convictions that were never going to come around to accepting the New Normal (now known as the ‘Great Reset’) would be cohered into an identifiable group so they could be marked and isolated. And now they will be persecuted—and some, prosecuted... Later, purged. This revolutionary tactic has been played dozens of times since the European nation states began to coalesce some 250 years ago. The Bolsheviks of Russia being the most well-known and described, a study of that period would be most instructive for us now.

But this time there is an added dimension that I believe will have massive consequences—and may present an enormous opportunity—the likes of which we have not seen since the beginning of the Christian age. Unlike every other revolution where one monarchy was replaced with another, or with a parliament, or where a dictatorship was replaced with a republic, that shift in the political sphere did not completely discredit the philosophy of the state... This time it’s different. With what everyone has witnessed in plain sight, in one stroke of the sword, the national idol, the god of Democracy has failed... exposed as a fraud and rendered impotent.

There simply is no fallback for the West. Technology has discovered the magic and the genie cannot be put back into the bottle. The Powers held the power to deceive only while their trick was concealed. Now being revealed that the “anonymous vote” can be, and is, endlessly manipulated by software, and ballots to non-existent ‘citizens’ can be printed indeterminately out of the ether—and then counted by machines using the same software—what then is a “vote”? The definition loses all meaning, and with it the idea of democracy itself. It was always just a shell game.

This revelation is a paradigm shift for many patriots who were still reluctant devotees to the System. (I know of a few myself). The government of the United States, based on a democratic republic, cannot be reformed now. There is nothing to go back to. Information Technology and the emerging AI will be the new god, and it will be an omnipotent and omniscient dictator, or we will have no god to govern us at all. Barring a catastrophic event and a return to pre-industrial society, no valid alternative of a State remains in our modern world. And it seems at least half of the population will have none of this new god.

We’ve lifted the curtain here, for this is how the globalists intended to achieve a Technocracy. But until the time of the harvest, the tares could not be pulled out, “lest the tares be taken with the wheat”. They had to have time to be revealed as tares, and a way to identify them, so that they could be gathered and burned. The MAGA psyop was the ploy. Later, when the ‘Farmers’ had banished all competing governments and consolidated the nations under their central digital banking system, taking full possession of the field of the world...they would have the wheat for their bread.

Now that all of this is revealed, let’s come back to what we can do, and what we’ve thus far failed to do...

Our countrymen who sold themselves into bondage with this man are now entering a very bad place, and we along with them. If God is yet merciful to us, we may not have all-out civil war, but it remains a very high probability in the face of things now. This would be the worst case scenario, with the greatest loss of blood and wealth. Next to that would be a minimally violent separation in the form of multiple secessions. Less blood may be shed in this case, but perhaps an equal amount of population displacement, famine, and widespread impoverishment. War, on our soil, by foreign invasion is another possibility in any combination with the other scenarios due to the breakdown of military power and our disadvantage of societal chaos. Possibly equal to the worst case scenario is simply devolution into an absolute tyrannical dictatorship in which a Soviet-style police state is established. In all situations, we'd need to expect and be prepared for long term loss of utilities, extreme fuel and food shortages, and widespread lawlessness. Preparing for these events is prudent, and I think at this point, duty-bound for Christians especially. Think critical supplies, security, food, water, clothing, shelter. For assistance in understanding these logistics and what to expect, study the Balkans war—a recent dissolution of a modern western nation...much is available on YouTube and many other places on the internet. Caveat: not for the faint of heart. Many people are probably unaware that any of that ever happened to a Christian, white nation in our lifetimes.

As to what we haven't done, as Christians, which has helped to predicate this mess and laid some of the blame upon us, perhaps we should simply ask ourselves, 'what practical alternatives have WE offered to the unbelievers and the seekers'? Harping on the illegitimacy of the State and the ungodliness of the Constitution and the futility of voting, etc., is not a solution. I believe it was Gary North who often said, "you can't beat something with nothing." Though we often like to excoriate the political ideology of the masses and the godlessness of our culture and our economy, what have we proposed to counter them? And have any of us proof-tested any ideas that we may have had? We can't expect decent men and women with families to provide for to just walk off their jobs, close out their bank accounts, and hike into the woods with a bowie knife and a bic lighter expecting to eat squirrels and wild mushrooms. Have we imagined and developed opportunities for separate societies; rival (godly) systems of money and commerce, food production and trade? Communal protection (security)? What will people do who've left the reservation and want to live entirely outside of the State? Must they all live like vagabonds, or can we find new ways to produce and enjoy wealth—the labor of our hands? Can we maintain wealth and the means of production, and multiply it if we were to acquire it outright? And can we do it unmolested by the wicked who may still surround us? As Israel of old did...

In other words, brethren, have we truly led by example? Have we been working towards the goal of forming godly nations and localized (governing) assemblies of believers (ecclesia)? Have we established—or even proposed—rival courts based upon Yahweh's laws? Do we even know how to do this without recreating an authoritative State? Would you believe that the heathen have already done much of this in places like London where they've created little autonomous zones under the sharia law of Islam, for cryin' out loud? And yet Christians have failed to do this, as far as I'm aware, in ANY corner of a Western nation, or anywhere else on the earth. Why is that?

I won't belabor the point any longer—I think we get it. Our God has all the answers to these questions. We must be petitioning Him for them...NOW. We may or may not have to start over...from scratch. I hope we do not, for that would be a terrible long slog and most of us don't have it in us any more for the frontier life (I don't). But Yahweh led His people OUT from the bondage of Egypt and into the wilderness, and to those who were faithful, He gave them "strong cities, and a fat land, and possessed houses full of all goods, wells digged, vineyards, and oliveyards, and fruit trees in abundance: so they did eat, and were filled, and became fat, and delighted themselves in thy great goodness." (Nehemiah 9:25)

Who knows if we, like our brethren before us, will be likewise blessed. But if not, we who understand should work towards that end of delighting in the great goodness of God, by way of learning obedience unto Him. Even, and especially, in these troubled and unprecedented times.
