

SCIENCE!

"Science!"
I can smell the chemicals...

"She blinded me with science!"
And hit me with technology

--Thomas Dolby, She Blinded Me with Science, 1982

"ὠφελέειν ἢ μὴ βλάπτειν" (First, do no harm). --Hippocrates, ~400 B.C.

In 1996, eminent virologist and molecular biologist Peter Duesberg published a monumental work entitled Inventing the AIDS Virus. Everyone who wishes to understand what is occurring now needs to read this book.

In the Acknowledgements section, Peter dedicates this book to those cohorts of his who "have decided that truth is more important than the comfort of compromise." Amen to that—it's a terrible shame that more Christians don't believe this. Further along in the introduction we receive the true kernel of his testimony... for he declares that "by a great volume of evidence...I have disproved the virus-AIDS hypothesis and exposed the political maneuverings behind the war on AIDS." Today, 25 years later, he is still one of the Scientific-Medical Establishment's most hated dissidents.

Hopefully, we'll begin to realize how these "political maneuverings" have been used to further the "Agenda" against society, blinding us with the science, and now, as the injection campaign unspools upon a grossly ignorant and trusting society, "hitting us with technology".

But I'd like to first bring your attention to Kary Mullis, receiver of the Nobel Prize in chemistry in 1993 for his invention of the PCR (Polymerase Chain Reaction) technique. Kary wrote the Forward for Peter's book, in which he identifies the chief and insurmountable problem he'd encountered in his own initial research on the AIDS hypothesis—namely, that there was no answer to the question of what was the original source for the statement: "HIV is the probable cause of AIDS". For years as a researcher, he was confounded by this, finally concluding:

We have not been able to discover any good reasons why most of the people on the earth believe that AIDS is a disease caused by a virus called HIV. There is simply no scientific evidence demonstrating this is true.

Today, this ever remains the case, swept down the memory hole.

But moreover, and most ominous, he decries the use of the extremely toxic chemotherapy drug, AZT, being prescribed to patients who had no other complaint than being “tested positive for HIV antibodies”... and was quite clearly causing the very symptoms of the disease which manifested only AFTER the administering of the drug. Finally, Kary concludes that “we cannot understand how all this madness came about...this is one hell of a mistake.”

This is the coursework of the book. The path of this search for truth and the conclusions therein are of extreme relevance for us today, as they are being repeated at this very moment right before our eyes. Duesberg, whether intentionally or not, in my opinion, effectively demonstrates that none of this was a “mistake”. Rather, as he says at the outset:

The colossal failure of the war on AIDS is a predictable consequence if scientists are operating at a fundamentally flawed assumption...The single flaw that determined the destiny of AIDS research since 1984 was that AIDS is infectious. After taking this wrong turn, scientists had to make many more bad assumptions upon which they have built a huge artifice of mistaken ideas.

And that’s putting it gracefully.

The fact is, outside of the diabolical machinations of the ring leaders (we’ll get to later), the Establishment, fed by the federal and industrial deluge of funding, is working on graft on a level unseen prior to this “epidemic”. They have every reason to propagate the charade, and no reason to go against it. Rather, the thousands of “scientists” and researchers and journalists all clamor for a bigger slice of the federal pie—as has been the nature of things since government has been in the business in earnest of dealing in money confectionaries. The Pharma-Medical Juggernaut IS the US economy; next to it is only the arms industry (which is primarily used to prop up the former—see Afghanistan).

But to arrive at where we are now from then, we need to expose some of the main actors. I first will point you in the direction of an incredible interview of Kary Mullis given in 1996. In it, you will discover the very nature of the fraud of “Science” as we know it today. He defines his views on the AIDS fiasco, as well as his personal opinion of the liar and fraud, Anthony Fauci (who has dictated Public health policy in the US for three decades now). Kary has often made it clear that his PCR analysis can in NO WAY be used to detect or diagnose a disease. And that little bit of dissent may have just been a bridge too far for his enemies. Kary died of “pneumonia” unexpectedly in the fall of 2019, just prior to Bill Gates’ Event 201 pre-simulation of the Covid plandemic.

Most will be unaware of the fact that “America’s doctor”, Fauci the Edomite (who has publicly declared that all who question him are “anti-science”), played a leading role in the HIV-AIDS hustle. When in 1984, Robert Gallo announced in an international press conference in Washington DC the existence of the “AIDS virus”, he had a little shadow in a little skullcap standing behind him. With much media fanfare and government propaganda, this announcement was made (as Mullis and Duesberg dutifully questioned) prior to the publication of any scientific evidence confirming the virus theory. It was simply an ex nihilo statement of fact. And with that, “science by press conference” was spoken into existence.

From that point forward, HIV/AIDS was scientific dogma, and all federal research would now be directed towards how the “virus” caused AIDS, and how to manage it. And at the top of this federal program, directing from his throne at the NIH, was none other than Anthony Fauci. This misdirection had intended goals as well as the usual unintended consequences. But the end result, as Duesberg tells it, was that,

“People are not being warned about the true risks for developing AIDS, doctors are using ineffective or dangerous treatments, and public fear is being exploited.”

I submit that this exploitation of “public fear” has been perfected over the decades, and is now being used in a masterstroke of psychological violence against the masses with Fauci’s newest manifestation of medical tyranny: Covid-19.

I believe that HIV/AIDS was a long program of building up the “research” infrastructure, learning and practicing the control mechanisms in the population, gathering the funding and the loyalties of the government and para-government entities (pharma corporations), and the coalescing of the Elites with their wealth and power to finally enact their “Georgia Guidestones” fantasy (which incidentally was erected just 2 years before the first “AIDS” case was reported in 1981).

In fact, I could make a very good case that HIV/AIDS and the inexplicable events of 9/11, and now the Covid-19 pandemic, are all one and the same. They all converge upon a single path of domination and subjection of a post-Christian society to be supplanted by the long orchestrated Jew World Order. And I am further convinced that “Judeo-Christianity” and so-called “Christian Zionism”, which stems from Scofieldism, were not random occurrences but rather the result of deliberate infiltration into the Seminaries and pulpits of what are falsely called “churches”. Well, perhaps, rightly called churches, as these have nothing whatever to do with biblical Christianity and the ecclesia that Jesus Christ established.

But it was the “Science” which replaced God generations ago. The Word of God would have to defer to the New Revelations of man handed down by the Universities and laboratories—the new arbiters of truth. Christians were thus conditioned to doubt and reject what the Scriptures clearly taught in EVERY aspect of doctrine—history, anthropology, Creation itself, the Laws and ordinances of God, health, diet, economy, Godly Government, marriage, family...the list goes on. Christians so-called now sit in their pews and hear their dumb dog pastors tell them to “Trust the Science! Get the jab...after all, Jesus would, because that’s loving your neighbor!” And they dutifully oblige. Meanwhile, Caesar is preparing to mandate ALL of these draconian control measures (don’t be fooled by the temporary lull in tyranny). At some point, all of these “churches” will begin insisting that their people medically “render unto Caesar”, as it will be “the law”. If you want to see the future here, take a good look at what is going down right now in New Zealand (aka, a “boot stamping on a human face forever”). This was once almost exclusively a Christian European society of free men and women (much like colonial America was at one time). Now, though (unlike us) the demographics haven’t much changed, nevertheless the people have become a confederacy of fools, entirely disarmed, dependent as babies, and ruled by a demonic little waif of a woman...trembling in fear and cowering to her government’s every insane demand. (And take a gander at the freak of a ‘woman’ she appointed as ‘deputy prime minister’). WHY have they succumbed so easily? Because of the Science...Their once beautiful nation will collapse before ours—in horrors.

Is Covid caused by a virus? Not surprisingly, like AIDS, no evidence whatsoever lends any proof to the claim. No virus has been isolated to date from any “Covid” patient. No government agency in the US or anywhere else has any isolate sample of any virus being claimed to cause “Covid-19”. The PCR test—as the CDC now admits (and as Kary Mullis told us)—does not identify a virus particle, nor prove the presence of any virus, and they have now disclaimed its use as an indicator of the virus which they falsely claim causes the disease. Most of us know this already, but if you do not, please research the facts. So what is causing the “Covid” deaths that are being reported? Well I will tell you. Like most pathogenic AIDS cases, these deaths are unequivocally caused by an iatrogenic disease. And if you disagree, YOU are not trusting the “Science”.

Medicine and Science (purporting to be one and the same) have caused more deaths over human history than probably any known cause, and I say that with all confidence.

The SMON Fiasco

And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years, And had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse, When she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment. For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole. And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague. (Mark 5:25-29)

I will use this one example offered early on in Duesberg’s book to answer Kary’s concluding question, and simply show how the madness occurs.

This is an unbelievable story if it weren't actually true. But the fact is, it's not the only time this sort of thing has happened. Pellagra is another example... Thought to be an infectious disease for 200 years, it was a courageous American doctor in 1916 who finally cracked the case (after injecting blood and fecal matter from pellagic patients into himself), subsequently discovering it was NOT a contagious microbe, but a dietary deficiency (lack of Niacin). That's how science used to work.

The "SMON epidemic" began in Japan in 1959. Patient One was a middle aged woman suffering from intestinal problems and a mysterious nerve disorder which had paralyzed her legs. Doctors were initially baffled but soon the number of cases at the hospital increased and they knew they were in the midst of an outbreak of some kind. Resembling polio (but testing negative for the virus), the immediate suspicion was that it must be a new type of virus and the hunt was on to discover it. Over the next five years, clusters of this polio-like syndrome appeared in several regional areas causing hundreds of victims. The clusters were initially seen within families, while inevitably the first person to develop the condition was followed within weeks by a relative. This was enough to point to an infectious disease—although there were strange contradictions, such as it was middle-aged women who were primarily contracting it, few men, and hardly any children (who normally transmit any infectious disease).

The virus hunters expected to find a virus that primarily caused diarrhea, and secondarily caused paralysis, as was the case with polio. But after years of searching, not a single virus could be isolated from a patient. Meanwhile the epidemic was growing, and in the year 1964 as the Olympics were approaching, 96 new cases had developed near the site of the Games. Now sufferers were developing blindness and other nerve disorders. That year, the disease was officially dubbed Subacute Myelo-Optico-Neuropathy (SMON) and a standardized clinical diagnosis was developed. That same year, predictably, a "microbe" was fingered as the likely cause—an echovirus—and they were off to the races. But three years of ensuing research failed to reproduce the findings of said virus and the dogging lack of evidence began to cast huge doubts upon the viral theory.

As the investigations continued, one research team made an accidental observation, but it was tragically brushed aside. What they'd discovered was a correlation between most of the patients' onset of symptoms and the use of two different diarrhea-fighting drugs. Since both drugs were likewise prescribed for the early symptoms of the disease, suspicion naturally arose that there was some connection; however, intent on the viral hypothesis, the observation was effectively ignored by "science". Also, it seemed extremely unlikely that coincidentally, two different diarrhea drugs would cause the same effects... Unfortunately, what was overlooked at the time was that the two drugs were actually two different brand names for the same compound—a fact not discovered for several more years.

Meanwhile, the disease continued to ravage the local populations and a number of researchers believed they'd discovered a number of new candidates for a virus. These viruses also turned out to be false alarms. In 1969 the Japanese Ministry of Health increased the funding for the discovery of the virus by ten times, making the program the most expensive ever. A decade had now passed and virologists had come up completely empty-handed. Over a thousand victims had already died and many more permanently injured. Now, some researchers had proposed a "slow-virus" theory—that is a virus that took years, or even a decade, to incubate until finally causing the disease. Sort of like HIV (which didn't exist yet). Preparations of body fluids were made from infected patients and injected into chimpanzees to attempt to inflict the disease upon them. After three years of waiting, the monkeys never got sick, and it was back to the drawing board.

These theatrics continued for the next few years but it was later in 1969, after 2,000 new victims were claimed, that another research group made the same earlier connection to the two diarrhea drugs. But this time it was discovered that the two drugs were merely brand names, and in fact one and the same—clioquinol—a freely available over the counter drug. This drug was then fed to mice to test the theory, but unfortunately, it only killed the mice, proving to the very smart scientists that it didn't actually cause the disease(!) It was yet another year before they re-assessed the testing and realized they'd actually proven the drug's acute toxicity. A nationwide survey of SMON patients was then done and it was found that all of the victims had in fact been using the drug before the onset of symptoms. This tended to explain many things, like why the disease clustered in households, and primarily affected middle aged women (who tended to most often use the drugs). But, as expected, the interpretation of this data did not set well with the virus hunters, since this would have indicated a non-contagious syndrome—which they were certain it was—and furthermore (and much more damning), the drug was being used clinically to treat the very symptoms found in the SMON patients while hospitalized. In other words, the doctors were treating the patients who had previously, inadvertently poisoned themselves, with the very drug they had used to cause the disease in the first place.

Or, as Duesberg phrased it:

"The doctors and scientists wanted to believe in a virus because they prescribed clioquinol. One of the drug's main side effects was constipation and abdominal pain. Now because the drug caused the pain, doctors again prescribed the drug. Ignorant of the drug's side effects, they assumed the stomach pains resulted from the primary sickness and kept increasing the dose in a vicious cycle."

The end result was often the eventual deaths of the patients.

It was then learned that the epidemic began in Japan shortly after the approval of the drug for manufacture and sale. On September 8, 1970, the Japanese government banned all sales of the drug and the caseload for that month immediately dropped below 20. The following year only 36 cases were seen, and only three more cases appeared over the next two years. By 1973 the epidemic was over.

But a dark twist in the story is recorded as follows: Just one month before the official government announcement of the clioquinol connection and the subsequent banning of the drug, another erroneous announcement of a SMON virus discovery was made in August of 1970. In that egregious incident, the Japanese news media had widely pronounced the cause of SMON had been determined as indeed a virus, and a hysteria of the contagion rapidly spread through the country. This final, furious panic caused terrified family members of SMON patients to segregate from their “plague infected” relatives, leading to many of the victims to commit suicide. Thus did “one hell of a mistake”—a Wormwood star burn itself out over the island of Japan with a flurry of self-murder.

The upshot is this: For 15 years, an iatrogenic disease claimed over 11,000 victims including thousands of fatalities, sacrificed by “Science” because a flawed virus hypothesis was too embarrassing for the Establishment to confess.

SMON was entirely the result of human error, hubris, and vanity. AIDS was only partly so. Covid is a complete con. You can see the logical progression.

The deaths from “Covid” can be directly attributed to the treatments of toxic drugs like Remdesivir, coupled with the totally counterproductive fentanyl-sedated intubation, which has an 85% fatality rate. But that’s the “Science” ...not to mention the fat federal stipend paid out for each “Covid” patient diagnosed and treated.

“Science” is not something to be trusted, but perpetually doubted. Clinical proof must be demanded and never assumed as long as liars like Fauci and eugenicists like Gates presume to create reality for the herd. It should never be assumed that their purposes are not a corralling and a culling, for they have openly said otherwise. Both the AIDS farce and the Covid plandemic are NOT merely the result of compounded human errors... It would be very naïve to think so. Human error can be—and often times is—purposely directed by other humans. People—smart people like scientists and doctors—are no better than us common dummies in their propensity to be LED (and deluded). There are psychopaths among us—wicked men—who actually enjoy leading the otherwise unwilling by deception, and the appeal to their “authority”, which is a form of worship to them. Their purposes are so mendacious that it seems to us with a functioning conscience that we must be misinterpreting them—no one can be that evil. We have been blinded by their science and have been fools for not seeing it. But they have learned to control the masses by fear and ignorance and they—and we—will soon be chained by their technology if we don't take immediate evasive maneuvers. AIDS has been with us for 40 years now while most of us successfully disregarded it. I guarantee they don't plan for Covid to go away any time soon, nor will they allow us to ignore it.

Finally, and above all, brethren, let us acknowledge our God and never fear our enemies, remembering "He has surely set them in slippery places..."

Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies. (Psalm 103)
