

THE LAW AND THE PROFIT

PROF'IT, verb transitive To benefit; to advantage; applied to one's self, to derive some pecuniary interest or some accession of good from any thing; as, to profit one's self by a commercial undertaking, or by reading or instruction...to advance the interest of.

(Webster's 1928)

There's a legal and philosophical Latin term known as Cui Bono?... "Who benefits?" An understanding of what law is must speak to that question.

Therefore, in light of our crazed society and its totalitarian government freshly installed by the last crop of deep state actors, generals, lawyers and propagandists (and with the help tens of millions of welfare grifters, foreign intruders and an army of vapid, white wokesters who hate their parents, Robert E. Lee, and all other men), we need a redress of what makes these people tick, and how they hoodwink so many of us into accepting their claim to define law or redefine it as they see fit. After all, if a corrupt fool of a man in the late stages of senility (propped up by multiple body doubles, CGI "enhancements" and daily drug cocktails) can play the role of a god these days—and cause great masses of people to "fear" him—we're entering probably a worst-case scenario for the death of an empire. And we're living inside its carcass.

There is God's Law, and there is "law and order". So as to avoid confusion, I will make the distinction in this article and maintain it throughout. When referring to "God's Law", it will be specified, and I will define it now as determined ONLY through His own direct revelation given to us in the scriptures. That would be the written Law (the Word). There is also a natural law. For we've also been told Creation itself was made under His Law and, being subject to it, it can also lead us towards a proper understanding. A few quick examples...

Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him? (1 Cor 11:14)

Because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath shewed it unto them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse. (Rom 1:19-20)

Truth, morality (good and evil) and the nature of reality can be discerned sometimes by natural means, and other times only by divine revelation. A third way is sometimes proffered, and that is through the revelation of man, or by the words of an “authority”. That is to suggest that law (truth and morality) can be found or mined from within us—or more accurately, from within THEM; those with the mantle of authority.

Thus they take upon themselves the authority to create a society in their own image and for their own benefit—“to advance their own interests.” They call this a “society of law and order”, which is a hypnotic phrase—a sort of incantation which seems to paralyze the mind of Western Man. The opposite, of course, must be lawlessness, a truly terrifying state of affairs which we must ever guard against! We are taught this mantra from infancy, should anyone ask, “Why?”: “Those are the rules!”

But that mindless slogan is simply how the fraud stays afloat. The “Whys” are a thousand tiny leaks that threaten the ship of State and they must be relentlessly plugged. “Law and order” is a fragile thing, you see. But rather than being a moral description of reality—as a good counterfeit of God’s Law would be—for our authoritarians, in fact, the “Law” IS an Order. That is its essence and purpose.

Unfortunately, what the law is, or isn’t, is a thought process that few ever bother with. Therefore, I’ve taken up the task for them herein, with the hope that some small measure of understanding will infect the minds of a few, wake up the “woke”, and possibly salvage a few honest people from the hell we are running headlong into...and maybe a call to muster a few good men.

Therefore, what it is not:

The law is not “truth” mined from the earth or gleaned from the minds of great men. Morality is not discovered, and codified by the gifted for the benefit of the moron and the idiot. Quite the opposite, in fact. Those who rise to “rulership” over others almost always are, as the Scriptures say, “the basest of men”. Only gods can discern law, and only fools believe they are gods. Stay tuned, as I will contradict that statement later. Sort of.

The idea that the ruling class, as legislators, produce ordinances as a “code of conduct” mutually beneficial for the populace, is utter nonsense... By now, with the latest object lesson in “democracy” behind us, this should be crystal clear. “Legislation” is nothing but this: A set of orders written for the enforcers... to the effect of bringing the people to heel. CONTROL of the population is the ultimate purpose; the morality of the law is irrelevant. Moreover, they’ve become so compliant and stupefied, the masses believe they “asked for” these laws, or there was some common agreement as a condition of a majority “vote”. But nothing could be farther than the truth. ALL legislation is imposed upon the populace by the ruling class without their consent, and often their knowledge, and the lack thereof is never a pardon... Doubt that? Take a few dozen hours to plow through your State's statutory code (all readily available on-line). Ask yourself if you were ever consulted upon the making of any of these "laws", and then admit the reality that you were wholly unaware of almost all of them. And be sure to read the consequences (statutory judgements) for failing to know this.

It's hardly relevant anyway, as the law, once again, is just an ORDER for the government troops to ACT upon the people, and under which conditions. It is nothing else. Your own ignorance of statutory law is mostly intentional and beside the point anyway. So-called "protection under the law" for the accused was always a fiction for the rubes to imbibe, and they love to have it so. And they're happy to pay dearly for this "protection" via egregious attorney's fees once the need arises. That's why the "Framers" gave us the Ten Amendments... The make-believe of "rights" promised by the State is comforting to the simple—especially after they've been apprehended for some non-crime and find themselves on the business end of the law—but time always reveals the truth. The judicial process itself is the crime, and the innocent are guilty before, during and after the trial, in every case. Like the Casino, the State always wins, even when it loses. After all, they made the rules, and they choose whether or not to play by them. You, on the other hand, are nothing but a citizen.

The Rules of the Game

So the illusion of law rests upon the illusion of authority. Authority confers power, and without power, the law is toothless and irrelevant anyway. An unenforceable law is no law at all. Now, how the game is played is to first convince the people within some defined border that a certain minority of other people are endowed with a natural hierarchy over them. This is the basis for every state religion. It must be accepted on faith alone, because the inept and impotent works of the ruling class always betray their claim to divinity. But the hierarchy must be established nevertheless, and the usual method throughout the ages has been so-called "divine right"...That is, divinity, or the right to rule, is delegated to them by the Creator Himself. This happened way back in the past where the scepter of rule passed through genealogical lines. These would be considered monarchists, or aristocratic rulers (wealth within elite groups or families confers divine appointment). But this method has since been superseded. Or so we believe.

In our modern civilization of (kingless) nation-states, we've evolved into something called "democratic rule". A Democracy is a fictitious "agreement" to which no one actually agrees, but rather participates out of ignorance, coercion or propaganda. This is officially known as the "Social Contract". That is to say, the people are under contract, or obligation, to participate in the System (the State) by way of being born into the previously defined borders. It is a tacit agreement, because the default is to opt IN at birth. Opting OUT means to "go back to Africa" (or communist China, or Russia, or wherever you prefer, since you hate our Constitution and America). The other means of opting out is to simply die. Seems there is no other legitimate recourse.

And so, a hierarchy is established by the belief that a political class rightfully exists, and always has existed, because your parents agreed to it (or you did by not submitting to an abortion, or thereafter "leaving"). You, therefore come under their rightful authority by way of consent, and the hierarchy, in turn, has authority because you consented to it. That's what's known as circular reasoning. Nevertheless, when a critical mass of the populace believes this and carries on as if it were the case, the circle is squared, and Power is naturally established. This is because there is power in numbers. Large groups can force their will upon smaller groups. Also, the powers themselves have collected and monopolized superior armaments and other tools of subjection and the will to use them against you, should you dissent.

It's the exact same tactic of the monarchists, only repackaged for the modern consumer of Super Bowl ads.

This concludes the refresher course. I'm telling you all of this not because you've forgotten it, but because I have a greater point to make...And here is where we get specific, and become angry at ourselves for our weakness.

We have a duty to obey God, and to fear Him. And only Him. Believers have always had a hard time with that. First, we are commanded to fear no one, under any circumstances, except our God. The Hebrew word is yārē, "to fear, revere, stand in awe, dread, to be terrified of". This is the word God commands towards Himself. It does not simply mean to "honor", as in to be merely respectful, as some churchmen of the Gospel of Nice love to aver. It means dread.

We are specifically told we are not to fear man—but in fact when man is wielding authority as law, the Bible calls them "gods". And here's the twist: When that law is God's Law, and His children wield it properly, He's declared:

"I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most High." (Psalm 82:6)

Christ famously affirmed that in John 10:34, speaking to those rulers of Israel.

But, when men create their own law, asserting their own authority, these become the "gods of the heathen". When working in concert, they create a State and the State itself becomes god, and they become its priests and prophets...individual godlets. It's lucrative, and power is intoxicating, particularly to the congenitally unprincipled. These were the "snakes" and "foxes" Jesus was speaking of in the passage above.

Yet we still fear these false gods and serve them with obedience. And we often justify it in the same conniving, and cowardly way Israel of old did.

Because Israel then (like Israel now), in their foolish rebellion thought they could outsmart their Creator, we've been given many examples "for our learning", complete with the consequences thereof to demonstrate their error. A study of 2Kings 17 reveals an intriguing example of how it is possible to "fear God" while thinking to simultaneously "fear other gods". Of course we cannot serve two masters, so it becomes evident in that passage which master Israel was then serving:

"For so it was, that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and had feared other gods, And walked in the statutes of the heathen, whom the Lord cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made." (v.7,8)

The bolded section then is the very definition of “fearing other gods”...Reading on, we see what other manner of abominations they were doing—worshipping the “host of heaven”, practicing witchcrafts, and sacrificing their own children (burning them alive...we’re more sophisticated today of course; we do it chemically). But to appease God (so as to assuage His wrath, one supposes), they still managed to “go to church” on Sunday, and made yet a pretense of honor...

“They feared the Lord, AND served their own gods, after the manner of the nations whom they carried away from thence.” (v.33)

Of course, even then, as now, infanticide was “legal,” so it was ok to indulge in it. After all, they were “obeying the powers that be”, and since they claimed ALSO to “fear the Lord” (they did not), God would excuse their sin. But God calls them out and showed them which master they’d decided to serve, and not the Other.

*“Unto this day they do after the former manners: they fear not the Lord, neither do they after their statutes, or after their ordinances, or after the law and commandment which the Lord commanded the children of Jacob, whom he named Israel; With whom the Lord had made a covenant, and charged them, saying, Ye shall not fear other gods, nor bow yourselves to them, nor serve them, nor sacrifice to them...And the statutes, and the ordinances, and the law, and the commandment, which HE wrote for you, ye shall observe to do for evermore; and ye shall not fear other gods.” (v.34-37)

Let us pay careful attention to that last bolded statement. Because if we claim to be His children, we are still bound to that command exclusively.

Here is where we stand today, and here is the point. Extremely wicked men and women have decisively claimed to be gods over us. They now have a “mandate”. And they will attempt to confirm this by our obedience to their edicts. These will inevitably be contrary to God’s Law—and egregiously so. And they will strive to instill fear into us to force compliance by using the power of the State—their hired dogs and their “legal system” to cow us to their will. They will threaten (and often succeed) to imprison us, and to take from us our property, our livelihood, and even, possibly, our lives. By doing so, they hope to cause us to deny our God and Savior who has strictly warned us NOT to obey them, serve them, or fear them. Some, perhaps many, will cave to their will, citing Romans 13 or 1Peter 2, hoping their appeasement will spare them, and attempting to justify it for the “greater good” or to “protect their families”. This tactic will fail and they will entrap themselves and only help to enslave their progeny.

The fear of man bringeth a snare: but whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe. Many seek the ruler's favour; but every man's judgment cometh from the Lord. (Prov 29)

Tyranny doesn’t happen through decree; it only happens when we allow it...when we OBEY the tyrant’s law. This is what the fear of man always brings and this is the inevitable end of every society and nation that forgets God.

Yes, the New Covenant concurs:

So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me. (Heb 13:6)

And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. (Matt 10:28)

These are commands, brethren. Be bold and strengthen yourselves in the Lord. If any are feeling weak, NOW is the time to pray for strength and wisdom and the faith to carry out His will. We must decide now that we will enact and obey HIS Law even—and especially—in the face of wicked men who hate Christ. The godlets will call for your chains, or your blood perhaps, but our God is able to crush them in a moment. We and too many of our fathers before us have been weak and compliant towards the godless and their “law” and they have clubbed us with it and prevailed. We need to repent of this.

I’ve no more idea what those “executive orders” were that Obiden was signing than he did, and I’ve heard of the so-called “bills” being sent up to the high command as we speak to legislate the effective full disarmament of the American population...internment camps, de facto forced “vaccinations”, anal swabbing, cessation of free travel, a digital world-wide currency, the great reset, whatever. I’ve resolved to not comply. I may quietly resist, like Bartleby the Scrivener, with the perpetual refusal, “I would prefer not”... Until I am forced to act. With God’s help, I shall be able and willing to refuse to comply with wicked and unlawful government mandates so that we can protect others under us and around us who may be weaker.

But we are nearing a crisis point, where things can go either of two ways.

For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him. Herein thou hast done foolishly: therefore from henceforth thou shalt have wars. (2 Chron 16:9)

That’s way 1. That’s what He wants for us. But if we continue in the way of our fathers, we will inherit the last part of that passage. Sadly, that is exactly what Israel did in the days of Ahaz, king of Judah. That chapter in 2 Kings ends unfortunately:

So these nations feared the Lord, and served their graven images, both their children, and their children’s children: as did their fathers, so do they unto this day. (v41)

Or we can break the cycle.

Way 2 is forsaking their gods and prevailing with the Lord over our enemies. It is the way of Gideon, who forsook the false gods, and “brake the graven images” of his father.

The great lesson there was that God doesn’t work for us until we’ve lost all other hope in ourselves, and in our rulers, and in every natural way of escape. But when we’ve come to the point of full reliance on Him, He then gives us the power to fight in the battle.

Brethren, Jesus is not going to ride in on a white horse and slay our enemies for us—he’s already done that. Now we must work. It might be tempting to say ‘this is not my home’ and I “wait for a city not made with hands”...and thank God that is true. But this WILL be the home of our children and our children’s children, and all of our brethren who will come after us. We can run and hide—and perhaps escape with our lives—and leave for them a dung hill, a hell-zone of a godless nation of mindless slaves, swarmed with swarthy foreigners... Or we can stand up to the Lie, refuse their “mandate”, and deny their authority. We have “ONE Law, and ONE Lawgiver” — Jesus Christ the King. And we’re going to have to live or die by that. Let them profit in their own blood.

As I’ve said before, we may have to fight in the meantime. That's fine with me. I don't need a 'comfortable retirement'—I have an eternity of peace awaiting me. But I’ve resolved NOT to give away my Christian heritage and the land my forefathers scraped out of a howling wilderness, paying for it with their wretched lives, and where so many godly men far greater than me did so many far greater things, and suffered for the hope of the generations to come...so some feral dogs, white heathen sodomites, and various imported pagans can enjoy the fruits of our, and MY labor—and take from us the Kingdom and turn it into Sodom from sea to shining sea. They can have it when they take it from me in battle.
